Abstract. This paper begins with a description of rationality. The theoretical sources of this study are represented by the works of J. Habermas and A. Marga. In the second part of the paper we compare the mechanisms of three models of everyday rational dialog, i.g. the dynamic predicate theoretical approach, Grice's logic of conversation and the dialogical approach. At the end we present a description of the logic of irrational conversation.

Keywords: rational dialog, irrational dialog, logic.
